

Do you want to shape the journey of a new life science company?

OnDosis develops a novel technology which integrates oral medicines with intelligent dosing and digital health. Our vision is to become a game-changer with global impact, our ambition is to build a new life science/health tech company with roots in Gothenburg and AstraZeneca.

After two successful years since being founded, OnDosis is accelerating. We are now looking for a Co-Pilot to the CEO, a position which will be critical in order to drive the company towards our ambition.

We are looking for an energetic doer. A person that is making things happen, connecting dots and building relationships. This individual will grow with OnDosis and be part of a small but dynamic leadership team.

We expect you to have/be:

- Relevant academic degree
- Self-propelled and target oriented
- Excellent communication skills both written and spoken
- Experience of Business Development in an International environment
- Analytical skills with business focus
- Intellectual rigor and curiosity

We would find it nice if you have:

- Experience from med tech, health tech or pharma Industry
- Experience from a start-up company

The tasks you will get engaged in spans from preparing materials for decisions at the board, coordinating and planning activities where we will meet future partners, analyse competitive landscapes, develop business cases, gain insights in new disease or technology areas, meet and scout potential investors. Just to start with.

Please read more on how we will change the game on www.ondosis.com
