

Safeguarding Adult Review – Easy Read version

Part 1 – about the review

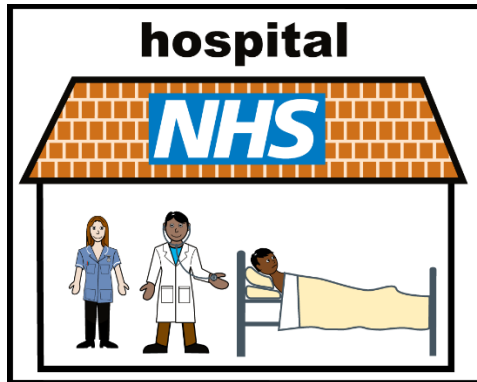

The Stockport Safeguarding Adults Partnership must do a Safeguarding Adult Review when someone has died. We want to help other people in the future. The review is not about blaming people or services. It is about learning and making care safer.

This review is about three women called L, B, and A. We have not used their full names. This helps keep their information private.

The review looked at what happened. The review looked at what needs to change to keep people safe in the future.

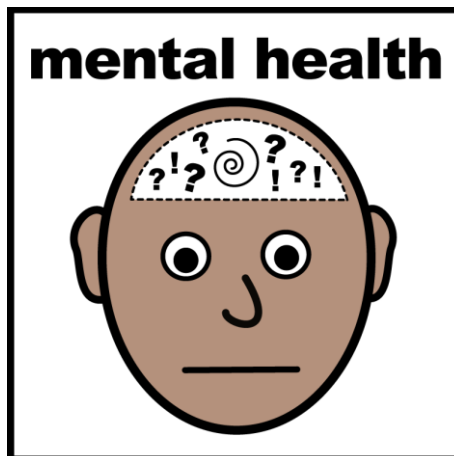

Part 2 – about the women

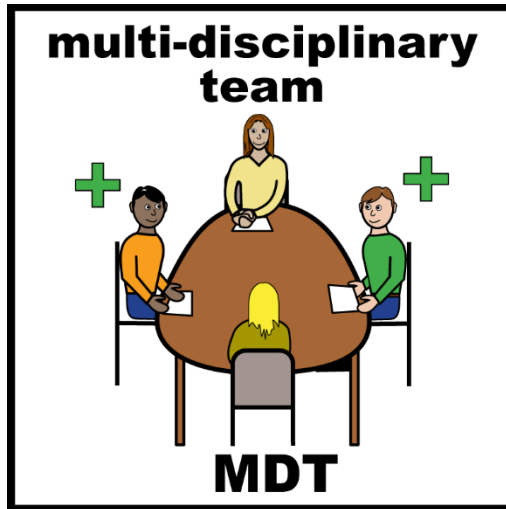

The women were staying in a hospital in Stockport. This was far away from their home.

The women needed help with their mental health.

The three women died while they were in hospital.

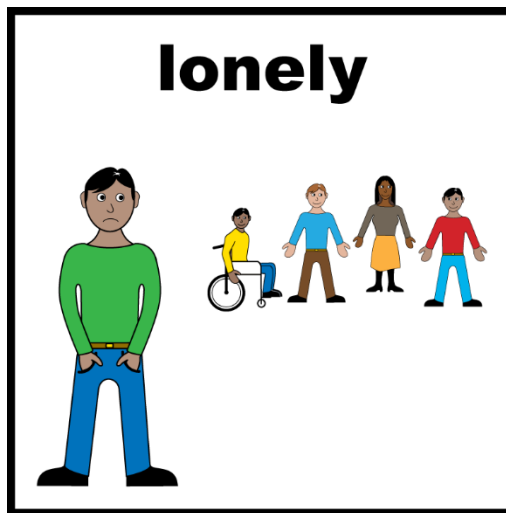

Part 3 – what did the review find?

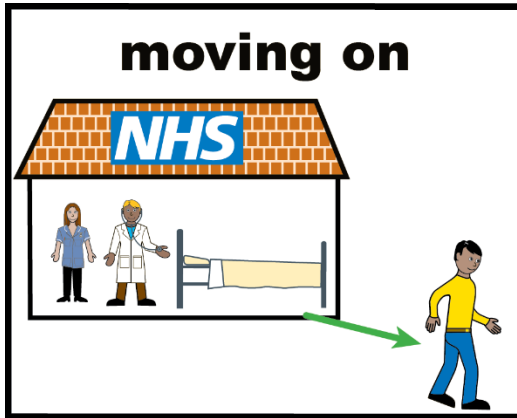

There were some problems with how professionals worked together. The problems were not from just one service.

It was difficult to find the right service for each woman.

The women needed a lot of different support. This support was not always available. It took too long to get the right care for them.

All three women were in a hospital a long way from where they lived. This made it harder for them to get better. Being away from home for a long time can make people feel lonely and upset.

The women waited too long to move to other services. These services may have been better for them.

Waiting too long can make it harder for people to get better.

The women and their families spoke about their worries and concerns. People listened to their worries. But this did not always change what happened.

Services should use what people say when they make decisions about their care.

Part 4 – our plan to make things better

The review says services should make changes. We will write a plan. This is a list of things we will do to make things better.

The plan will say what needs to happen and who will do it.

The plan will also say how we will check things have improved.
