Use this form to waive the legal right - provided under the terms of the Ontario Pension Benefits Act (PBA) - of your spouse (legal spouse or common-law spouse) to receive spousal survivor benefits if you die before your pension start date.

Only your spouse has to sign and submit this form by the due date to waive this right. Your spouse should read this form carefully before signing it, and also review the information page, "Waiver forms for spousal survivor benefits". INTRODUCTION: OMERS SURVIVOR BENEFITS

If an OMERS Plan member dies, a benefit (a pension or lump sum) may be payable to one or more people or to the member's estate according to the order of entitlement (see below). The people may include the member's eligible spouse (legal spouse or common-law spouse) and/or eligible dependent child or children, or the member's designated beneficiary(ies). These people and the member's estate are called the member's "survivors" and the benefits they may be eligible for are "survivor benefits".

The OMERS Plan and applicable legislation will determine which of your survivors may receive a survivor benefit in the event of your death either before or after your pension has started, and how much that benefit will be. The Ontario Pension Benefits Act (PBA) establishes minimum standards for benefits to a surviving eligible spouse, and the OMERS Plan complies with and sometimes exceeds these standards.

OMERS "order of entitlement"

The OMERS Plan defines an order of entitlement that complies with the PBA, so that survivor benefits are paid in this order of priority:

1. To the person who qualifies as your eligible spouse at your date of death, or on your pension start date, as applicable.
2. To your eligible dependent child(ren).
3. To your living designated beneficiary(ies).
4. To your estate.

Note: In most cases, benefits payable to an eligible dependent child are paid to whoever is the guardian of property for the child.

Depending on who is eligible to receive a benefit, the benefit type and amount may vary. For example, an eligible spouse would be eligible for a monthly pension; the estate can receive a lump sum only. Certain benefits are the result of a calculation of a "residual" amount, which may be zero.

How waiver forms work

Your eligible spouse may waive all rights to receive OMERS Plan spousal survivor benefits by submitting a waiver form to OMERS. Your children, beneficiaries and estate may not waive survivor benefits.

If a valid waiver form is submitted to OMERS, then the next person(s) in the order of entitlement may become eligible for a survivor benefit.

Whoever has signed a waiver may cancel it within the stated deadlines by delivering a written and signed notice of cancellation to OMERS.

OMERS three waiver forms (150, 151a, 151b)

These forms waive different benefits that may be payable to a spouse in different situations.

OMERS Term	Meaning	Waiver Form	Description

FORM 150 - WAIVER OF PRE-RETIREMENT DEATH BENEFIT (FSCO FORM 4)

Form 150 is used to waive the right to the survivor benefits that are payable to your pre-retirement spouse if you die before your pension start date. This form requires only your spouse to sign it, and it must be witnessed. The content of Section 3 of Form 150 is required by the PBA.

The waiver must be completed and delivered to OMERS. If your spouse submits a valid Form 150 and you die before your pension start date, the next person(s) in the OMERS order of entitlement may become eligible for a survivor benefit from the OMERS Plan. Your spouse can cancel the waiver by delivering a written and signed notice to OMERS before your death and before your pension start date.

Who is an "eligible spouse" for the purpose of a Form 150?

If a valid Form 150 has not been submitted, your eligible spouse is the person who is your legal spouse or common-law spouse and who is not living separate and apart from you on the date of your pre-retirement death.

What survivor benefits is my spouse waiving by submitting a Form 150?

Submitting a valid Form 150 means that your spouse is waiving entitlement to survivor benefits. If there is no waiver form signed and you die before your pension start date, your eligible spouse may choose to receive survivor benefits in one of the following two forms.

1. Lifetime spousal pension

The lifetime pension payable to your eligible spouse equals 66 2/3% of the lifetime pension (excluding the bridge benefit) that you earned in the OMERS Plan to your date of death.

Plus concurrent children's benefit: A further 10% of your earned pension is payable for each eligible dependent child. The combined spousal pension and children's benefit cannot exceed 100% of your lifetime pension.

Waiver Forms for Spousal Survivor Benefits

2. One-time cash refund or transfer

Your eligible spouse may choose to receive a one-time cash refund (less tax) instead of the entire benefit described in #1. The option is available to your spouse to transfer this refund on a tax-deferred basis, to a registered retirement savings plan (RRSP), a registered pension plan (RPP), or a registered retirement income fund (RRIF).

If my spouse submits a Form 150 and I die before my pension start date, who is next in line for survivor benefits?

If your spouse has submitted a valid Form 150 waiving their entitlement to survivor benefits, the following is the order of entitlement for survivor benefits from the OMERS Plan.

1. Your eligible dependent children, if any

A children's pension is payable to your eligible dependent child(ren). It equals 66 2/3% of your lifetime pension (excluding the bridge benefit) earned to your date of death and is divided equally among your eligible children. As each child ceases to be eligible (the earlier of their death or the date they no longer meet the definition of eligible dependent child), the pension is shared equally among the remaining eligible children.

2. Your living designated beneficiary(ies), if any

If there are no eligible dependent children, a cash refund (less tax) is divided among your living designated beneficiaries according to the percentages you specified on your beneficiary designation form.

3. Your estate

If there is no eligible spouse or children and no living beneficiaries on the date of your pre-retirement death, or if you designated "estate" on your beneficiary form, the refund described above for a beneficiary is payable to your estate.

Note: If you die before your pension start date, your designated living beneficiary(ies) (or, if none, your estate) may also receive a special refund and/or a 50% Rule refund, if any.

What if I name my spouse on my beneficiary designation form and my spouse has signed a Form 150?

A Form 150 waives the survivor benefits payable to an eligible spouse, but it does not apply to benefits payable to a beneficiary. So, if your spouse is also named on your beneficiary designation form, your spouse may still receive benefits payable to a beneficiary upon your death. If you want to change your beneficiary designation, use OMERS Form 206 - Beneficiary information, available on www.omers.com.

FORM 151A - WAIVER OF JOINT AND SURVIVOR PENSION (FSCO FORM 3) - PART A: SPOUSAL PENSION FOR A RETIREMENT-DATE SPOUSE

Form 151a is used to waive the right to the survivor benefits that are payable to your retirement-date spouse if you die after your pension start date. (The surviving spouse pension is called a "joint and survivor" pension on the waiver form.) The content of Section 3 on Form 151a is required by the PBA.

To submit a valid Form 151a, you and your spouse must sign the form, have it witnessed and deliver it to OMERS within the 12-month period before your pension start date. If you and your spouse submit a valid Form 151a, the next person(s) in the order of entitlement may become eligible for a benefit from the OMERS Plan upon your post-retirement death.

Who is an "eligible spouse" for the purpose of the Form 151a?

Submitting a valid Form 151a means that your spouse is waiving entitlement to survivor benefits. If there is no valid waiver form on file with OMERS, and you die after your pension has started, survivor benefits are payable to the person who qualifies as your "retirement-date spouse". This is the person who was your legal spouse or common-law spouse on your pension start date and who was not living separate and apart from you on that date.

Important: If you have an eligible spouse on your pension start date, i.e., a retirement-date spouse, that spouse will continue to be eligible for spousal survivor benefits, even if the two of you separate or divorce after you retire and you enter into a new spousal relationship. This is a requirement of the PBA.

What survivor benefits is my spouse waiving by submitting a Form 151a?

If you die after your pension start date, your retirement-date spouse (if any) will receive the following spousal survivor benefits, provided that your spouse has not signed a Form 151a in the 12-month period before your pension start date.

- A lifetime spousal pension, payable from the first of the month following your death, that is equal to 66 2/3% of the lifetime pension (excluding bridge benefit) that you earned in the OMERS Plan to your date of death.
- Plus concurrent children's benefit: A further 10% of your earned pension is payable for each eligible dependent child. The combined spousal pension and children's benefit cannot exceed 100% of your lifetime pension.

*Note: The Form 151a states that the pension "must not be less than 60%". This is the minimum requirement under the PBA. The OMERS Plan 66 2/3% pension exceeds this minimum standard.

If my spouse submits a Form 151a and I die after my pension start date, who is next in line for survivor benefits?

If you and your spouse have submitted a valid Form 151a waiving your spouse's entitlement to survivor benefits, the following is the order of entitlement for survivor benefits from the OMERS Plan.

1. Your eligible dependent children, if any

A children's pension is payable to your eligible dependent child(ren). It equals 66 2/3% of your lifetime pension (excluding the bridge benefit) earned to your date of death and is divided equally among your eligible children. As each child ceases to be eligible (the earlier of their death or the date they no longer meet the definition of eligible dependent child), the pension is shared equally among the remaining eligible children.

2. Your living designated beneficiary(ies), if any

If there are no eligible dependent children, a residual refund is divided among your living designated beneficiaries according to the percentages you specified on your beneficiary designation form.

3. Your estate

If there is no eligible spouse or children and no living beneficiaries on the date of your post-retirement death, or if you designated "estate" on your beneficiary form, the residual refund described above for a beneficiary is payable to your estate.

What if I name my spouse on my beneficiary designation form and my spouse has signed a Form 151a?

A Form 151a waives the survivor benefits payable to an eligible spouse, but it does not apply to benefits payable to a beneficiary. So, if your spouse is also named on your beneficiary designation form, your spouse may still receive benefits payable to a beneficiary upon your death. If you want to change your beneficiary designation, use OMERS Form 206 - Beneficiary information, available on www.omers.com.

FORM 151B - WAIVER OF SPOUSAL PENSION - PART B: SPOUSAL PENSION FOR A POST-RETIREMENT-DATE SPOUSE

Determining the eligible surviving spouse of a deceased retired member is complex because a new spousal relationship may have started after retirement.

Form 151b is used to waive the right to the survivor benefits that are payable to a post-retirement-date spouse (see the table on page 3 for a definition). This provision in the OMERS Plan exceeds the minimum requirements under the PBA for spousal survivor benefits. If you and your spouse submit a valid Form 151b, the next person(s) in the order of entitlement may become eligible for a benefit from the OMERS Plan upon your post-retirement death.

Who is an "eligible spouse" for the purpose of the Form 151b?

Unless a valid Form 151b has been submitted, if you die after your pension start date, survivor benefits are payable to the person who is your eligible post-retirement-date spouse. This is the person who qualifies as your legal spouse or common-law spouse on your date of death, provided there is not another living person who meets the definition of retirement-date-spouse.

What survivor benefits is my spouse waiving by submitting a Form 151b?

If you die after your pension start date and you do not have a retirement-date spouse, your post-retirement-date spouse will receive the following spousal survivor benefits, if a Form 151b has not been submitted.

- A lifetime spousal pension, payable from the first of the month following your death, that is equal to 66 2/3% of the lifetime pension (excluding bridge benefit) that you earned in the OMERS Plan to your date of death.
- Plus concurrent children's benefit: A further 10% of your earned pension is payable for each eligible dependent child. The combined spousal pension and children's benefit cannot exceed 100% of your lifetime pension.

If my spouse submits a Form 151b and I die after my pension start date, who is next in line for survivor benefits?

If you and your spouse have submitted a valid Form 151b waiving your spouse's entitlement to survivor benefits, the following is the order of entitlement for survivor benefits from the OMERS Plan.

1. Your eligible dependent children, if any

A children's pension is payable to your eligible dependent child(ren). It equals 66 2/3% of your lifetime pension (excluding the bridge benefit) earned to your date of death and is divided equally among your eligible children. As each child ceases to be eligible (the earlier of their death or the date they no longer meet the definition of eligible dependent child), the pension is shared equally among the remaining eligible children.

2. Your living designated beneficiary(ies), if any

If there are no eligible dependent children, a residual refund is divided among your living designated beneficiaries according to the percentages you specified on your beneficiary designation form.

3. Your estate

If there is no eligible spouse or children and no living beneficiaries on the date of your post-retirement death, or if you designated "estate" on your beneficiary form, the residual refund described above for a beneficiary is payable to your estate.

What if I name my spouse on my beneficiary designation form and my spouse has signed a Form 151b?

A Form 151b waives the survivor benefits payable to an eligible post-retirement-date spouse, but it does not apply to benefits payable to a beneficiary, so, if your spouse is also named on your beneficiary designation form, your spouse may still receive benefits payable to a beneficiary upon your death. If you want to change your beneficiary designation, use OMERS Form 206 - Beneficiary information, available on www.omers.com.

Important information about benefit amounts: Survivor benefits payable to a spouse and survivor benefits payable to other survivors are calculated differently. If a spouse submits a waiver, the result may be that no benefits are payable to anyone, depending on the value of the benefits already paid out to the retired member.

DEFINITIONS

50% RULE REFUND

If a member's contributions plus interest from January 1, 1987 to the date of termination are greater than 50% of the commuted value of the post-1986 pension, the member is entitled to a refund of the difference. This is called a 50% Rule Refund.

CASH REFUND

A one-time cash refund, as described at #2 on page 4, is equal to the sum of the member's contributions made prior to January 1, 1987, with interest to the date of the member's death; plus the commuted value of the member's pension earned on or after January 1, 1987.

COMMON-LAW SPOUSE

OMERS considers a common-law spouse to be a person who is not married to the member but is living together in a conjugal relationship:

- continuously, for a period of not less than three years; or
- in a relationship of some permanence, if they are the parents of a child as set out in section 4 of the Children's Law Reform Act.

LEGAL SPOUSE

OMERS considers a legal spouse to be a person who is legally married to the member.

ELIGIBLE DEPENDENT CHILD

OMERS considers an eligible dependent child to be:

- a natural child; or
- a legally adopted child; or
- a person whom a member has demonstrated a settled intention to treat as a child of his or her family (except under an arrangement where the child is placed for valuable consideration in a foster home by a person having lawful custody).

At the time of the member's death, the eligible child must be dependent on the member for support and also must be:

- 18 years or younger in the year of the member's death; or
- under age 25* and a full-time student; or
- totally disabled (as defined in the OMERS Plan).

If the member died before January 1, 2005, the eligibility period ends at age 21.*

LIVING SEPARATE AND APART

Whether two persons are "living separate and apart" is often complicated to assess. It is a question of both fact and law and must be determined on a case-by-case basis. The determination may require the assistance of a lawyer. In general, physical separation is usually, but not always, an indication that two persons are living separate and apart. However, physical separation is not always conclusive. There must also be a mutual or a unilateral intention for two persons to live separate and apart and end the marriage or common-law relationship. For example, a physical separation between two spouses caused by one of them living in a nursing home will not necessarily result in a determination that the spouses are living separate and apart, provided that both spouses intended the marriage or common-law relationship to continue despite the physical barrier.

PENSION START DATE

This refers to the date the first installment of the pension is due according to the terms of the OMERS Plan.

RESIDUAL REFUND

The total of your OMERS contributions with interest as at the date of retirement, less the amount of any benefits already paid to you and/or to your survivors. If the pension benefits already paid exceed the contributions plus interest, the residual refund will be zero.

SPECIAL REFUND

When the commuted value of the member's OMERS Plan pension earned after 1986 is greater than the amount needed to fund the survivor benefit for the member's eligible dependent child(ren), the difference is paid as an OMERS Plan special refund. It is paid to the living beneficiary(ies) named by the member on the OMERS Plan beneficiary designation form, or if none, to the member's estate.
