Small Actions, Big Impact: How Legal Teams Help Accounting

At Robinson & Henry, strong financial operations are a team effort. While Accounting is responsible for managing the firm's financial transactions, billing, collections, and reporting, our success depends heavily on the collaboration and support of our legal teams.

Every day, seemingly small actions can make a significant difference in improving efficiency, reducing unnecessary work, and ensuring a positive client experience.

A few simple ways our legal teams make an impact:

- Timely Communication: Promptly sharing information about client payments, billing concerns, and changes in matter status helps Accounting address issues before they become larger problems.
- Accurate Information: Ensuring matter details, billing information, and client records are accurate helps prevent errors, delays, and unnecessary follow-up.
- Proactive Client Engagement: Addressing financial concerns early and reinforcing payment expectations helps maintain healthy client relationships and improves collection outcomes.
- Prompt Matter Closure: Completing the necessary steps to close matters in a timely manner allows Accounting to finalize billing, process refunds, and ensure accurate financial reporting.
- Responsiveness: Timely responses to Accounting inquiries help keep transactions moving and prevent avoidable delays.

Why does it matter? Because efficiency in one department creates efficiency across the entire firm. Fewer corrections, faster resolutions, and better communication allow everyone to spend more time focused on what matters most—serving our clients.

Our Accounting team appreciates the partnership and support we receive from our legal teams every day. By continuing to focus on these small but meaningful actions, we can strengthen our operations, improve the client experience, and contribute to Robinson & Henry's continued success.

Small actions really do make a big impact!

Pet-torney of the Month: Ranger

Meet Ranger:A Nationally Ranked Australian Cattle Dog! Ranger has plenty to celebrate! Bred, owned, and handled by R&H's Mehgan Mehl. Ranger has made a name for himself in the show ring. Born in Mehgan's home on‧May 22, 2020, as part of her Nova x Brie litter, Ranger has had Mehgan by his side as his breeder, co-owner, and handler from day one.

Since then, Ranger has earned his championship, Grand Championship at the Bronze level, and Canine Good Citizen title. His accomplishments include an Owner-Handled Reserve Best in Show at the Arapahoe Kennel Club in September 2025 and a Herding Group First at the Evergreen Colorado Kennel Club in September 2026. He has also earned multiple group wins and placements in both all-breed and Owner- Handled competitions.

Ranger's hard work in the ring has earned him some impressive national rankings!

Through September 2026, he is ranked

#2 Owner-Handled Australian Cattle Dog in the United States and #8 Australian Cattle Dog, All-Breed - United States through October.

Next up, Ranger and Mehgan are heading to Orlando, Florida, for the 2026 AKC National Championship presented by Royal Canin, taking place December 8–13 at the Orange County Convention Center. The weekend includes the National Owner-Handled Series Finals, where only the top 10 owner-handled dogs in each breed nationwide earn an invitation. As the #2-ranked Owner-Handled Australian Cattle Dog in the country, Ranger has officially earned his spot!

For Mehgan, this achievement is about more than rankings and ribbons. Having bred and raised Ranger and worked alongside him throughout his journey, reaching the national stage together is a special accomplishment.

Congratulations to Mehgan and Ranger! We'll be cheering you on!! Want to see your pet? Send Isabella _a photo and a few fun facts about them!
