Waiting for economies of scale to kick in

EAB has benefitted from a positive financial market development in 2021. In addition, the company has trimmed its cost base, which should bode well for its earning development, with clear ambitions to increase its exposure to alternative investments (AI). We believe the toughest fee pressure has started to fade, while the company should be able to increase its recurring revenue in line with scaling up its AI portfolio. We remain slightly cautious about the possible carry potential from multiple funds, while these could boost earnings development in 2022-23. The process of recruiting a new CEO is underway and could support the cost development ahead. We derive a multiples-based fair value range of EUR 3.1-3.8 (3.0-3.7) per share.

Private equity funds in focus

EAB aims to derive two-thirds of its operating income from alternative investments within three to five years. We view this target as ambitious given that AI funds currently correspond to approximately a third of EAB's operating income. However, we expect solid growth in AI funds and we model roughly a 30% operating income CAGR for these funds in 2020-23. The company is currently performing fundraising for two AI funds – a real estate fund and a renewable energy fund. In addition, we believe it could announce a new real estate fund in 2022, as the current property development fund's term closes then.

We keep our 2021 estimates largely intact, upping 2022E-23E

Although we keep our 2021 estimates largely intact, we hike our 2022-23 EBIT estimates by 19-56% owing to lower cost assumptions. We believe the company can scale down its investments, which should become visible in depreciation. In addition, we remain slightly cautious about possible carry potential, which could boost the earnings development in 2022-23.

Fair value range of EUR 3.1-3.8 – growth required

We base our fair value range on a combination of two valuation methods: peer valuations and P/E and EV/EBIT. Based on the average of these valuation methods, we derive a fair value range of EUR 3.1-3.8 (3.0-3.7) per share. We expect progress in the new AI funds to act as a trigger for the share. However, we note that the company must succeed with the ramp-up of its funds in order to reach our estimates. In addition, we note that the UCITS fund business is cyclical in nature, thus exposing EAB Group to capital market fluctuations.

Expectations ahead of H2 2021

EAB's H1 was solid. Operating income was up 21% y/y and EBIT was EUR 1.1m. The company has benefitted from a strong financial market recovery, while we expect slightly slower growth in UCITS fund revenues in H2. Alternative investments remain the key growth driver going forward and the company is proceeding with two fundraising projects. EAB is currently searching for a new CEO so that the current CEO can focus solely on the development of sustainable private capital fund operations. The company targets having two-thirds of operating income from private capital funds within the next three to five years.

We model 7% y/y operating income growth for H2

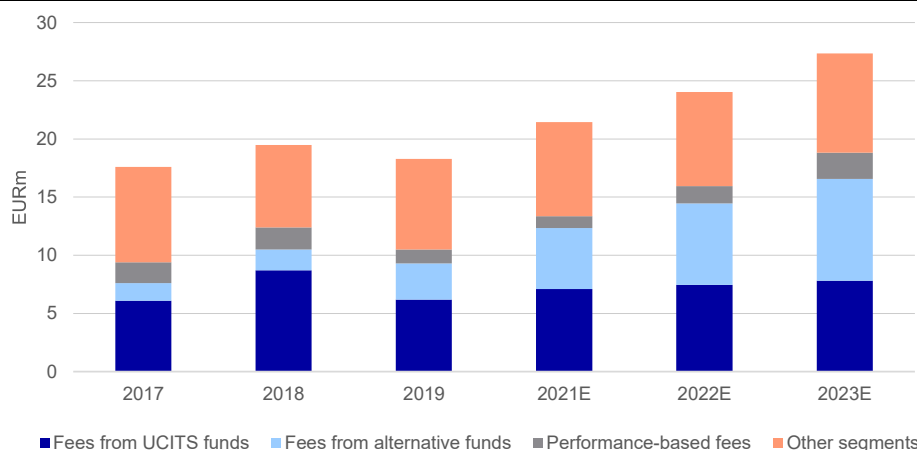

We believe EAB has been able to continue increasing its fees from UCITS funds, although at a slightly slower pace than in H1 (+22% y/y). More importantly, we expect roughly 30% y/y growth in alternative investment (AI) funds, driven by continuing fundraising in Value Added Fund III and Renewable Energy Infrastructure Fund II. We believe the company can close its Renewable Energy Fund in 2022. In total, we model 7% y/y operating income growth for H2 (+20% in H1).

EAB targets two-thirds of operating income from private capital funds

EAB refreshed its financial targets in conjunction with its H2 2020 report in February. The company has a target for two-thirds of its operating income to come from private capital funds over the next three to five years. We currently expect roughly a 50% share by 2023 when taking into account performance and brokerage fees. However, we remain slightly cautious on possible performance fees, which could surprise on the upside in 2022. We currently model EUR 1m in performance fees for 2021 and EUR 1.5m for 2022.

In addition, the company aims to increase its operating income by 100% within the next three to five years (we model a ~50% increase in 2020-23) and improve its operating profit margin from comparable operating income to above 35% (we model ~25% in 2023 after 3.6% in 2020).

Trimmed cost base

We think the company has trimmed its cost base during the pandemic. Personnel costs started to normalise during H1, while we expect a slight relative increase in 2022, as EAB is most likely stepping up its renewable energy and private equity expertise in order to steer towards its strategic target of two-thirds of operating income from private capital funds. However, we believe the company will maintain tight cost control for other administrative expenses. For H2, we expect tight cost control and we model EUR 4.0m in personnel costs (EUR 4.0m in H1) and EUR 1.5m in other administrative costs (EUR 1.4m in H1).

Estimate revisions

We take a slightly more positive view on costs

We make only minor top-line revisions for 2021E-22E, while we take a more positive view for 2023E. We hike our 2022-23 EBIT estimates by 19-56% owing to an expected lower cost base.

Valuation and risks

We derive a fair value range of EUR 3.1-3.8 (3.0-3.7) by equally weighting our P/E and EV/EBIT multiples.

Fair value range of EUR 3.1-3.8

Based on our revenue growth and operating profit margin expectations, we estimate a fair value range of EUR 3.1-3.8 per share (3.0-3.7) using the average of two different valuation approaches (P/E and EV/EBIT). This valuation range is represented by the red lines in the chart below.

Based on our 2022 EBIT estimate of EUR 4.4m and an accepted valuation multiple range of 10-12x (midpoint: 11x), we derive our EV/EBIT multiple-based fair value range of EUR 3.2-3.8. Similarly, we use our 2022 EPS estimate of EUR 0.23 and an accepted multiple range of 13-16x (midpoint: 14.5x) to derive our P/E-based fair value range of EUR 3.0-3.8.

Main risks

We believe the largest risks for EAB Group's operations are macroeconomic and market-related, as an economic slowdown could hamper the performance of funds and thus affect fees negatively. The internal risks are related to the company's ability to attract customers to invest in its own funds in the long term. Sales could suffer if the performance of EAB Group's funds fails to meet investor expectations. Success or failure in single fundraising projects could have a significant impact on the company's EBIT and valuation.

Risk information

The risk of investing in certain financial instruments, including those mentioned in this report, is generally high, as their market value is exposed to a lot of different factors such as the operational and financial conditions of the relevant company, growth prospects, change in interest rates, the economic and political environment, foreign exchange rates, shifts in market sentiments etc. Where an investment or security is denominated in a different currency to the investor's currency of reference, changes in rates of exchange may have an adverse effect on the value, price or income of or from that investment to the investor. Past performance is not a guide to future performance. Estimates of future performance are based on assumptions that may not be realized. When investing in individual shares, the investor may lose all or part of the investments.

Fair value and sensitivity

We calculate our fair values by weighting DCF, DDM, SOTP, asset-based and other standard valuation methods. Our fair values are sensitive to changes in valuation assumptions, of which growth, margins, tax rates, working capital ratios, investment-to-sales ratios and cost of capital are typically the most sensitive. It should be noted that our fair values would change by a disproportionate factor if changes are made to any or all valuation assumptions, owing to the non-linear nature of the standard valuation models applied (mentioned above). As a consequence of the standard valuation models we apply, changes of 1-2 percentage points in any single valuation assumption can change the derived fair value by as much as 30% or more. All research is produced on an ad hoc basis and will be updated when the circumstances require it.

This research report should be considered marketing material, as it has been commissioned and paid for by the subject company, and has not been prepared in accordance with the regulations designed to promote the independence of investment research and it is not subject to any legal prohibition on dealing ahead of the dissemination of the report.
