

FINANCIAL AWARENESS DAY

AUGUST 14, 2022

Financial Awareness Day can really help your future self thrive, even during economic downturns, pandemics, or when unexpected expenses arise.

START EXPLORING HERE!

Take Jump\$tart's quiz to find out if you can afford your dream life. The results will indicate a ballpark relationship between your expenses and the income you will need to support your dream lifestyle. Research your local economy and determine if the results are accurate?

Subscribe to social media pages dedicated to financial awareness. Some options include Jump\$tart's Twitter or Today's Dough, a financial website for learners created by NAF academy alumni and learners. What is one thing you learned?

Explore NAF's Finance Passport Expedition on Cryptocurrencies & Blockchain and complete a passion project like creating a non-fungible token (NFT) or taking the $20K investment challenge.

Watch the 10 Personal Finance Rules School Doesn't Teach You video by Financial Wisdom that discusses credit, investing, and money management. Which rule can you start implementing into your daily life?

Download and play Financial Football, developed by Visa and the NFL. It's a fast-paced, interactive game that engages learners while teaching them money management skills.

Watch the trailer of "Borrowed Future | How Student Loans Are Killing The American Dream". Then, listen to a Popcorn Finance Podcast with Anthony O'Neal talking about obtaining a Debt-Free Degree. Be in the know if you plan to apply for college or financial aid.

Build a strong financial literacy foundation for your future by taking Intuit's Free Financial Literacy Foundations Course.
