

NATIONAL PUBLIC HEALTH WEEK

This year's National Public Health Week theme is "Centering and Celebrating Cultures in Health," which means that feeling like we belong, connection to our communities and developing cultural connections supports our health and the quality of our lives. Explore various career pathways that support public health.

Check out NAF's Biomedical Engineering Resource with a video from an industry expert and doctoral candidate, learning activities, and project challenges.

Use the Career Explorer Tool to research possible health careers. Filter by the minimum salary and maximum education commitment to view your career options.

Participate in a Student Day Webinar on April 4th hosted by National Public Health Week. Join their evening webinar or sign up to get the recording. Early-career professionals will share about their journey from public health student to public health professional.

Check out See yourself in a Public Health Career! Get answers to your questions: What degree should I get? How do I begin a career? Where I can work?

View the How to Use Your Bachelors in Public Health video. Also, learn about 7 great healthcare jobs that don't require a college degree for other career options.

Stay in the know and learn more about Public Health and advocacy by following Dr. Leslie on TikTok, Global Citizen on Twitter, American Public Health on Instagram.

Read about a young teen using her tech skills to address the national mental health crisis. Kamie Aran coded the app Geia to help teens assess their mental wellness.