Kupu whakataki / Introduction

was designed to respond to the late Dame Cheryll Sotheran's challenge in 2012 to transform MOTAT from being a “museum of things” to a “lightbulb institution” that is audience focused, vision based, and has a transformative impact on its community.

It is clear from our Annual Reports that our original strategy has had a positive and transformative impact on MOTAT, our audience, community, and team. Our visitor numbers, visitor satisfaction, revenue, collection care and engagement with the education and museum sectors and the wider community have significantly improved. Our Vision is also aligned to the Māori worldview; Kia whakatōmuri te haere whakamua - My past is my present is my future, I walk backwards into the future, with my eyes fixed on my past.

In the process of updating our strategy it was noted that MOTAT is the only museum in New Zealand that focuses specifically on the nations technological and innovation heritage. This technological evolution, which started with the tangata whenua, has had and continues to have a significant impact on the development of our nation, its people, culture, and economy. It defines who we are - we are a nation of innovators.

The success of this strategy should not be solely defined by our visitor numbers and revenue; it should be defined by the impact we have on others and our community.
