- Now in its third year, NO ONE RUNS ON EMPTY is a public awareness campaign highlighting issues for neighbors facing food insecurity, and action including advocacy, volunteerism, and financial support for hunger relief programs.
- Group 1001 and its subsidiary Gainbridge are providing funding for the second consecutive year.
- The campaign will feature a partnership with Andretti Autosport, with driver Romain Grosjean piloting the #28 Gleaners Food Bank of Indiana/DHL Honda in the GMR Grand Prix on May 14.
- Gleaners' goal is to provide 1 million gallons of milk to food insecure neighbors by the end of the year and calls on the community to join the Winners Give Milk effort this May by texting MILK to 55433 or visit gleanres.org/milk.

INDIANAPOLIS – Gleaners Food Bank of Indiana is once again on track to accelerate awareness of food insecurity throughout Central Indiana with the No One Runs on Empty initiative. The campaign, now in its third year, is funded by a $500,000 gift from Group 1001 and Gainbridge and backed by a partnership with Andretti Autosport and NTT INDYCAR SERIES driver Romain Grosjean. For the upcoming GMR Grand Prix, Grosjean will drive the No. 28 Gleaners Food Bank of Indiana Honda, which will display the Gleaners and Group 1001 logos, highlighting food insecurity, and drive the community to donate by texting MILK to 55433.

Joe Slater, Gleaners COO/CFO, noted that food insecurity affects many aspects of life, even for those who may not face the issue themselves. "Food insecurity is a higher indicator than income for the prevalence of the top 10 chronic diseases and conditions facing Americans today," he said. "Over half of the neighbors we serve rate their overall health as fair or poor. That is unacceptable."

Gleaners is taking action this year by focusing awareness and funding efforts around the lack of healthy dairy available to many neighbors facing food insecurity. "Inflation is really taking a toll on people," said Slater. "Dairy, and specifically milk, is a big need for the families we serve. It's expensive, yet it provides so many nutrients needed for growing kids, and it supports bone health in adults which is particularly important for the seniors we serve.”

“Group 1001 is proud to continue our support of the No One Runs On Empty campaign, where education and empowerment are front and center,” said Lisa Harpenau, Vice President of Corporate Communications at Group 1001. “Our partnership with Gleaners furthers our mission to service and community transformation through the power of education and we couldn’t be more excited to see the impact we make this year.”

When the No. 28 car takes the green flag for the GMR Grand Prix, it will do more than just sport the Gleaners logo on the car. It will demonstrate a significant partnership and commitment to increasing the awareness of hunger issues throughout the racing community and beyond. No child can run on empty and learn. No parent can run on empty and work hard to provide for their family. No doctor or teacher or race car driver can be their best when a basic need is not being met.

“It’s been an honor to team up with organizations like Gleaners Food Bank of Indiana and Group 1001 to help drive out hunger in our hometown,” stated Michael Andretti, Chief Executive Officer and Chairman of Andretti Autosport. “We’re proud to provide a platform for them to raise awareness and elevate their mission through our INDYCAR program. We know the importance of volunteers and join them in believing winners give milk.”

The Winners Give Milk campaign will culminate in June, designated as National Dairy Month. To learn more, text MILK to 55433 or visit gleaners.org/milk.
