

Procter & Gamble (P&G) Laundry Pods Recall April 11, 2024

April 5: Procter & Gamble (P&G) is recalling 8.2 million bags of laundry pods because the packaging can split open (near the zipper), making the contents accessible to children and "vulnerable populations" which pose a risk of serious injury if the laundry pods or packets are ingested, and pose a risk for eye or skin injuries as well.

Product(s) affected: The following Tide Pods, Gain Flings, Ace, and Ariel laundry detergent packets sold at retailers nationwide, including Walmart, Target, Family Dollar, and online on Amazon.com and other websites between Sept. 2023 - Feb. 2024. Here's the full list of lot numbers.

- Ace Pods Clean Breeze
- Ace Pods Spring Meadow
- Ariel Pods Alpine Breeze
- Gain Flings Blissful Breeze Scent
- Gain Flings Moonlight Breeze Scent
- Gain Flings Original
- Gain Flings Plus Odor Defense
- Gain Flings Plus Ultra Oxi
- Gain Flings Spring Daydream Scent
- Tide Pods Clean Breeze Scent

- Tide Pods Free & Gentle
- Tide Pods Light
- Tide Pods Original
- Tide Pods Oxi
- Tide Pods Spring Meadow Scent
- Tide Pods Ultra Oxi
- Tide Simply Pods Plus Oxi Boost

What to do if you have the product(s): Place the products in a container with a child-resistant lid. Store products away from children. If you don't have a child-resistant container, you can get one from the P&G Consumer Care Team. P&G will also give you a prepaid debit card (equal to your purchase price), a replacement bag, and a cabinet latch to help you securely store your laundry products.

Visit the appropriate website for more information and to request your bag replacement, cabinet lock, and debit card:

- Gain US ( English)
- Gain US (Spanish)
- Tide US (English)
- Tide US (Spanish)