FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS ABOUT ADA

Q: Are there limitations on the ADA's barrier removal requirements for existing facilities?

A: Yes. Barrier removal need be accomplished only when it is "readily achievable" to do so.

Q: What does the term "readily achievable" mean?

A: It means "easily accomplishable and able to be carried out without much difficulty or expense."

Q: How do I determine what is readily achievable?

A: Determining if barrier removal is readily achievable is a case-by-case judgment. Because removing common barriers can be simple and inexpensive in some cases and difficult and costly in others, the regulations for the ADA provide a flexible approach to compliance. Factors to consider include: (1) the nature and cost of the action; (2) the overall financial resources of the site involved; (3) the number of persons employed at the site; (4) the effect on expenses and resources; (5) legitimate safety requirements necessary for safe operation; and (6) if applicable, the relationship with any parent corporation.

Q: What are examples of the types of modifications that would be readily achievable in most cases?

A: Examples include the simple ramping of a few steps, the installation of grab bars where only routine reinforcement of the wall is required, and similar modest adjustments.

Q: Will businesses need to rearrange furniture and display racks?

A: Possibly. For example, bars may need to rearrange tables in order to permit access to wheelchair users.

Q: Does the ADA require existing buildings and newly constructed facilities to meet the same standards? A:

No. The ADA establishes different requirements for existing facilities and new constructions.

Q: If an area of my store is reachable only by a flight of steps, would I be required to add an elevator?

A: Usually, no. The readily achievable standard does not require barrier removal that requires burdensome expense, and in most cases, installing an elevator would qualify as a burdensome expense.

Q: I have a portable ramp that we use for deliveries – can't I just use that?

A: Yes, you could, but only if the installation of a permanent ramp is not readily achievable. If you use a portable ramp, it should be properly secured and staff should be trained in its safe use.

Q: What if I'm not able to remove barriers at this time due to my financial situation? Does that mean I'm relieved of current responsibilities?

A: No. When you can demonstrate that the removal of barriers is not readily achievable, you must make your goods and services available through alternative methods, if such methods are available and readily achievable. Keep in mind that barrier removal is a continuing obligation that changes as your circumstances change.

Q: When barrier removal is not readily achievable, must alternative steps be taken without regard to cost? A:

No, only readily achievable alternative steps must be undertaken.

Q: Must my business have handicapped-accessible restroom facilities?

A: Not as far as your license with the WV Lottery is concerned. The Lottery is only interested in making sure that your lottery games are accessible to disabled persons. That does not mean that as a private citizen you do not have other obligations under the ADA, such as accessibility to your restrooms, but it does mean that the Lottery is not required to assure your compliance in regard to those other obligations in order to grant or renew a license.

Q: I have removed all barriers that are readily achievable, but there are still barriers to my lottery games.

Can I honestly say that I am in compliance with the ADA?

A: Yes. If you have removed all barriers that are readily achievable, then you are ADA-compliant and may so answer on your license form.
