FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Elanco Animal Health announces it will exit ownership of its Dundee, Scotland manufacturing operations

Greenfield, Indiana, USA. (Wednesday, 27 January 2016) – Today at Elanco Animal Health, a subsidiary of Eli Lilly & Co. (LLY), we informed our workforce that we have made the business decision to exit ownership of our Dundee manufacturing operations.

The difficult decision was reached as part of an in-depth evaluation of our global manufacturing operations, allowing Elanco to maintain a competitive advantage in the continually changing animal health business. It is in no way a reflection of site performance at Dundee. The evaluation has also resulted in the decision to close our manufacturing site in Sligo, Ireland.

Over the coming months, one of our top priorities will be to seek a buyer for ongoing manufacturing operations at the site. The site will operate as normal during this time – continuing to deliver a safe, high-quality, reliable supply to customers. If efforts to find a suitable buyer are unsuccessful, we will commence the transfer of product supply to other manufacturing sites, leading to a site closure. If this were to occur, the company anticipates the transition of production would take approximately two years to complete.

As part of the announcement, some global support roles at Dundee will transition out of the site in 2016 and would not be part of a potential site sale. This transition, affecting about 30 positions, will commence shortly. The affected employees will enter a formal consultation period from mid-February to help them understand the changes and to examine options available to them.

Elanco understands this announcement will generate uncertainty and concern among employees. The company is sensitive to the needs of employees and will keep them informed throughout the process.
