Dear Chairman Blunt and Ranking Member Murray:

Elsevier is a leading provider of information and analytical solutions that help institutions and professionals make new discoveries, advance healthcare and save lives. Elsevier produces over 20,000 publications worldwide, including The Lancet, Cell and Trends in Cancer. In addition, Elsevier is a leader in digital solutions which support the nation's medical, academic and technical communities. Elsevier and its parent company, RELX Group, enjoy 15,000 employees in the United States who share the goal of expanding the boundaries of knowledge for the benefit of humanity.

I write to urge you to support substantial federal funding for libraries in fiscal year 2018. In particular, we support funding for programs covered under the Library Services Technology Act and the Innovative Approaches to Literacy Program. Both of these well-established programs deliver critical funding that helps libraries nationwide serve as anchors in their communities and expand access to knowledge and job training. Libraries also provide the public a rich array of academic, cultural and practical information.

Libraries serve as a community hub in many locations and help grow America's economy. We know the funding provided through the Library Services Technology Act and the Innovative Approaches to Literacy Program garners a return far more valuable than its initial investment. We therefore urge Congress to maintain a substantial investment in our nation's academic, research, school and community libraries.

Thank you,

Youngsuk "Y. S." Chi
Chairman, Elsevier
