The Poker Rules can be downloaded here.

All Actions Stand

The Player determines the action they want to perform in a game by clicking the appropriate Action button. Once a Player has selected an action it is final. Players must ensure they select the correct action.

All-In

If a Player does not have enough chips to bet during a hand when it is their turn to act, the Player is not forced to place the full bet amount. However, the Player must put all of their chips into the pot - this is called All-In. The game play that continues among other Players is put into a side pot. The All-In-Player has no share in this pot.

Bets and Raises

The following rule applies to Fixed-Limit games:

- The betting is capped at four bets - one bet and three raises, per betting round. When the betting is capped, Players may only call or fold.

The following rule applies to Pot-Limit and No-Limit games:

- There is no limit to the number of raises per betting round.

Blinds and Posts

The following rules apply:

- In Texas Hold'em and Omaha blind bets are used to start the game play. The Player to the immediate left of the Dealer posts the small blind. The next Player to the left posts the big blind. The small blind is half of the minimum bet limit.
- When new Players enter a game they are given a choice to post now or wait for the big blind. Players that decide to wait, receive no cards until it is their turn to post the big blind. Players that decide to post, bet the equivalent of one big blind and receive cards immediately.
- Both the big blind and the post are considered live blinds. This means that Players on the big blind and Players that posted can raise their own blind bets.
- Players that sit out, miss one or more blinds, and then sit in again, must either wait for the big blind to reach them again before receiving cards, or post both a big blind and a small blind to receive cards immediately.

Note: When posting both blinds, only the big blind portion of the post is live. The small blind portion of the post is placed in the pot. The Player is penalized the equivalent of a small blind.

Chip Dumping

We do not allow players to use our poker tables to pass funds to other players by deliberately folding re-raised hands in heads up situations or any other such situation that enables intentional passing of funds from one player to another. For security reasons we investigate all incidents of chip passing and accounts will be suspended while such investigations takes place.

Chip dumping is not allowed, and may result in the following:

- Players being disqualified and removed from the game.
- Players forfeiting all buy-in amounts.
- Players being permanently banned from Poker.
- Money/chips gained as a result of this activity being permanently lost.

Note: These decisions are at the discretion of the House.

Disconnection

Any instances of disconnection will result in the activation of Time Bank.

After the regular amount of decision-making time has expired, you have the option to use your Time Bank for additional thinking time. Players start a session with a 20 second Time Bank, and for every 50 hands played they receive a further 10 second Time Bank, up to a maximum of 90 seconds. Players can adjust their Time Bank by selecting Settings at the top of the Poker Lobby, then clicking Time Bank.

Leaving a Game

If a player wins and has more chips than when they first came to the table they may want to leave the table, bank their winnings and then return to the table with fewer chips. This is known as either 'Rat-Holing', 'Going South' or 'Reducing' and is not permitted.

If a player leaves a table they must wait 120 minutes before returning with fewer chips. If they wish to return within the 120 minutes they must sit down with the same amount of chips they left with.

Playing at More Than One Table

Players may play up to Sixteen tables at one time.

Players may not allege distraction or confusion as an excuse for errors made when playing at more than one table at the same time. Players are urged to consider the risk involved In-Playing at multiple tables at the same time. Errors that occur because of multiple-table play are strictly the Player's responsibility.

Screen Name

When you sign up for a poker account with bet365 you may only have one screen name. Once you have chosen your name we will only change it in the most exceptional of circumstances, so please choose very carefully. Such a restriction is in place to help combat fraud and collusion, and to allow players to become recognisable to the rest of the bet365 poker community.

Showdown

The following rules apply:

- All winning hands are shown automatically at the showdown. All losing hands are shown or mucked, as the Player chooses. If a Player previously selected the Muck Losing Hands option, all the Players losing hands are automatically mucked.

- Players that win a pot without a showdown are given the option to show or muck their hand. Uncalled winning hands that are mucked are not available for viewing in the Hand History readout.

Sitting Out

When seated at a table a player has the option to 'Sit Out'. To do this simply check the 'Sit Out' box. Once selected you will continue sitting at the table but will not be dealt in. You will remain sat out until you un-check the 'Sit Out' box. Once un-checked you will be dealt back in.

If you sit out of a Cash Game table, you will be sat out of all active Cash Game tables automatically.

Once selected you will continue sitting at all active tables but will not be dealt in. You will remain sat out at all active tables until you un-check the 'Sit Out' box. Once un-checked you will be dealt back in.

If you remain in Sit Out mode for longer than seven minutes you will be removed from the table and returned to the lobby.

We prevent players from entering and leaving (sitting out) games where the position relative to the dealer can bring advantage by requesting they post the equivalent of the blind (known as a dead blind).

No financial advantage will be gained by missing the rotation of the blind.

In a tournament, a player sitting out will automatically post blinds on their turn and will automatically be folded when they are not in the big blind position.

Sitting out of one tournament will not force you to sit out of other tournaments or Cash tables as blinds are being posted automatically.
