Global Product Supply Officer
Retiring effective June 30, 2019

Yannis leads P&G's global Product Supply function, which includes procurement, engineering, manufacturing, customer service, quality, distribution and innovation program management. The organization's approximately 60,000 employees, 115 manufacturing plants, and 200 distribution centers around the world are all focused on bringing irresistibly superior products to the world's consumers.

Under his leadership, Product Supply is innovating and transforming its global supply network, making it more synchronized and digitized, so the company and its suppliers can rapidly respond to consumer demand for P&G brands by supplying our retail customers in a manner that excels in performance and service, reduces costs and inventory, and increases on-shelf availability.

Yannis joined P&G in 1984 as a chemical engineer, and has worked in engineering and supply chain management positions across many of P&G's business units. He has lived and worked in North America, Latin America and Europe, and has served as Global Product Supply Officer since 2011.

Yannis is passionate about P&G's Citizenship agenda, serving on P&G's Sustainability Council and leading the company's product supply efforts in supplier diversity, disaster relief and sustainability—while ensuring P&G makes a positive impact in the communities where its plants operate. He thrives on being in touch with his organization and external business partners.
