Insider Tip

Atlanta-native Wes Gordon speaks on how Atlanta influenced him and helped him get where he is today.

"When people ask me about Atlanta, I always say I'd be hard-pressed to name a city that's more aesthetically oriented than Atlanta, and I say that with the highest respect. Houses, gardens, how people are dressed—people care here. That's beauty. It's not about money or snobbery, it's about self-respect and respect for your friends. There's so much we can't control, but to exert control over things and try to make them beautiful and nice and pretty... I love that in Atlanta, you can go street after street and look at the most love-filled, beautiful houses, and there's just a sense of optimism in this world that can be so dark and scary. It's very powerful."

Insider tip

Emily Shapiro, founder of TALD, tald.co

What makes good design?

"Good design makes you feel something — a sense of comfort, renewal, inspiration, warmth."

Favorite local design destinations?

"I love Wareco and R Hughes in ADAC, as well as Dixon Rye, BD Jeffries and Bungalow across Atlanta. I'm also really excited to check out PAGE HOUSE soon. I also love restaurants with interiors as lovely as the experience: Lucian Books and Wine (best selection of coffee table books), Le Bon Nosh and Little Sparrow."

Favorite local talent you admire?

"Summer Little of Prescott Design, Nina Long and Don Easterling of Mathews Design Group and Karen Shapiro of KRS Designs. Their work is very different. Summer's is unique for the region as it blends timeless, organic California style with English charm. Nina and Don set the standard for traditional interiors; they have immaculate taste and there is no one more knowledgeable about historic interiors than this duo. Karen has been one of the few true modern interior designers in Atlanta for decades; she is incredibly meticulous and draws inspiration from her travels, as well as architects like Frank Lloyd Wright.

Insider Tip

FARES KARGAR: Nooshé Jān Restaurant Group

Founder of Delbar & Bibi Restaurants

What do you think of Atlanta's culinary offerings?

"In my opinion, Atlanta's food scene is one of the best in the country, and I'm proud to be a part of it. I have a couple of places I frequent personally, like Le Bon Nosh for coffee and a quick grab-and-go breakfast. When I go to dinner in Atlanta, I prefer Umi and Palo Santo for their delicious food and ambiance. I have also recently been making an effort to visit every restaurant mentioned in the Atlanta Michelin guide. Most recently, I visited Talat Market, and it was exceptional—easily in my top 10 most memorable Atlanta dining experiences."

ATL foodie tips? "Try something new, dine out with a group of friends or family, and share items family-style. Order something the server recommends, something you love, and something someone else loves that you don't usually prefer. And order heavy on appetizers and lighter on entrees."

ALLIE STOLTE AND JACKSON FORD: Co-founders, roeme, roeme.com

"The future of fitness is social. We created Roeme because we're seeing an emerging trend of people wanting to blend their social lives with fitness, working out not only to stay healthy but also to spend time with friends or meet new people. By providing a platform that seamlessly integrates social connectivity with fitness activities, Roeme is creating a community-driven platform where users can have fun & engage with one another."

TASNEEM "DR. TAZ" BHATIA: Founder and CEO CentrespringMD, board certified medical doctor, author, integrative health expert

"When choosing a provider, you should look for someone with strong credentials in the field, whether they are a physician or a mid-level provider. It's important to find providers who work well within a team construct, as healthcare can be demanding and a single provider can quickly become overwhelmed or busy. Additionally, seek out a provider or provider team that demonstrates compatibility and collegiality. They should align with your health values, be willing to work as partners in your care, and show genuine concern for your well-being."
