POLYPHAGOUS SHOT-HOLE BORER AWARENESS

Become a biosecurity warrior and keep your eye out for signs and symptoms of the invasive Polyphagous Shot Hole Borer (PSHB). While you're in your gardens check your plants and trees for signs like shot holes and staining. Looking at wound points or areas where limbs have been removed can be a good spot to check as PSHB goes for easy entry points.

Report any suspicious findings to MyPestGuide website or email padis@dpird.wa.gov.au
