Meet the Masterminds behind Operation Blackout

Teddy Daniels is a survivor champion who has brought the concept of Operation Blackout, How to Survive 365 Days Of Darkness. He is a survival champion with a love for his nation that will never end.

He has a mission to help people survive the worst of times, such as starvation or societal collapse in war zones. Teddy was an infantryman who served in Afghanistan's war zones in 2011-12. He discovered some strategies to help you survive certain difficult times.

We all have faced days that were not pleasant, or situations that forced us to change our lives. What you say can be a life-changing moment!

Teddy, a soldier in Afghanistan's war zone on April 25, bravely took four AK-47 rounds to the body in an attempt to distract his fellow soldiers. Teddy was transformed at this moment. He became the icon of unmatched courage and faith.

Teddy then felt a calling to create a comprehensive survival manual named "Operation Blackout": How to Survive 365 Days Of Darkness for others to help them face the situation without panicking and with the utmost courage, alertness and resilience when faced with adversity.

Understanding a HEMP attack: Unleashing chaos through electromagnetic pulses

High Altitude Electromagnetic Pulse attacks (HEMPs) are devastating scenarios that involve the detonation a nuclear device from a high-altitude. HEMP attacks are primarily designed to release a powerful burst electromagnetic energy, rather than cause widespread destruction on the ground.

When combined with Earth's magnetic fields, this burst can create a powerful electromagnetic wave that could have disastrous consequences.

The Chaos and Disruption Caused by a HEMP attack

A HEMP attack can render modern electronics useless. The electromagnetic pulse can be generated and surge through electrical circuits, communication systems, power lines. The electromagnetic pulse generated can cause damage to everything from electrical grids, communication networks, transportation, and medical devices. Imagine a world without lights, transportation that works, or electronic communication. This scenario would plunge society into chaos.
