

November 2020

Arnott's ANZ purchases 100% segregated, certified sustainable and traceable palm oil to use in the baking of our biscuits.

Arnott's ANZ is proudly committed to sustainable practices for palm cultivation and in conjunction with our palm oil supplier, uses a 100% traceable and certified sustainable supply, with no deforestation.

This has been achieved through:

1. Membership of the RSPO

Arnott's ANZ and our palm oil supplier are active members of the Roundtable on Sustainable Palm Oil (RSPO).

2. Beyond RSPO – 100 % traceable and segregated supply

Buying from a palm oil supplier which has engaged with an independent sustainability partner to support and engage its supply chain to continually improve sustainable farming practices.

While Arnott's requires that all our suppliers adhere to the applicable environmental laws of the countries and regions in which they operate, Arnott's further encourages our suppliers to surpass baseline requirements where possible to reduce the environmental impact of their operations.

3. Sourced from Peninsular Malaysia. Committed to no deforestation, no peat and no exploitation

Palm oil used by Arnott's in its Australian-made products is sourced from Peninsular Malaysia only, from land which has been used to produce palm oil or other agriculture crops. This is not an area experiencing deforestation issues and orang-utans are not found in the wild on the peninsula.

Arnott's ANZ is committed to the aims of no deforestation, no peat destruction and no exploitation of local communities and workers in the communities in which our palm oil supply originates.

As one of the major food companies in Australia, Arnott's aims for industry-leading policies that reflect our commitment to conduct business in a manner that respects and protects the environment.

Arnott's has been proudly baking biscuits in Australia for over 150 years. 99% of Arnott's ANZ products are made in Australia at our three bakeries in Marlestone, SA; Huntingwood, NSW; and Virginia, QLD. The statements above pertain to all Arnott's biscuits made at these sites.
