

THE OFFICE OF PRESIDENT

The Founders established the office of president partly because they didn't like the _____ during King George III's reign.

The office of the President of the United States dates all the way back to the founding era of the country, and entails many different and important responsibilities. The president is considered the leader of the country and often the most powerful person in the world.

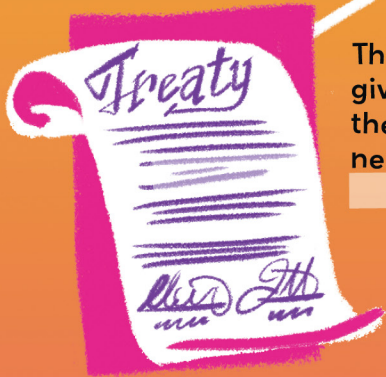

The president's main job is to enforce laws passed by Congress. In recent years, presidents have also played a major role in _____ legislation.

Presidents have lived in the _____ in Washington, D.C. since 1800.

A president can issue _____, which are intended to clarify or further explain laws and regulations passed by Congress.

The Constitution gives the president the power to negotiate _____.

The Constitution requires the president to inform Congress about the _____, which he usually does every year in a speech.

The president holds the title of _____ due to his role in defending the nation from threats and carrying out military policy.

The president often enforces laws passed by Congress by _____ to carry them out.

THE OFFICE OF PRESIDENT

The Founders established the office of president partly because they didn't like the TYRANNY during King George III's reign.

The office of the President of the United States dates all the way back to the founding era of the country, and entails many different and important responsibilities. The president is considered the leader of the country and often the most powerful person in the world.

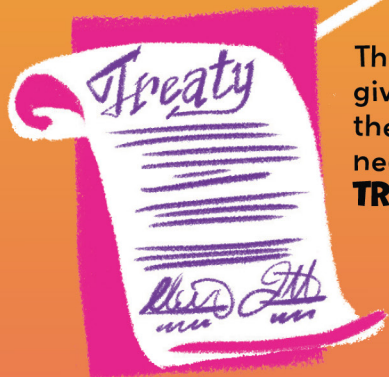

The president's main job is to enforce laws passed by Congress. In recent years, presidents have also played a major role in PROPOSING legislation.

Presidents have lived in the WHITE HOUSE in Washington, D.C. since 1800.

A president can issue EXECUTIVE ORDERS, which are intended to clarify or further explain laws and regulations passed by Congress.

The Constitution gives the president the power to negotiate TREATIES.

The Constitution requires the president to inform Congress about the STATE OF THE UNION, which he usually does every year in a speech.

The president holds the title of COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF due to his role in defending the nation from threats and carrying out military policy.

The president often enforces laws passed by Congress by APPOINTING OFFICIALS to carry them out.