Ghostburger began as a ghost kitchen in August 2020 running out of Espita, a Oaxacan restaurant in Shaw, Washington DC. It originally launched as a “pandemic pivot” to keep the doors open and our team employed through the first pandemic winter. It began with humble goals: Make enough extra revenue to not have to lay anyone off and make it through the colder months when nobody would use our patio. Humble goals or not, the first week launched with a bang and it quickly became a DC staple.

Ghostburger is a story about the history of our team. Most of our owners grew up in or around Philadelphia, so sandwiches are in our soul. Like any good Philadelphian, we’re all pretty opinionated as to what makes a great sandwich as well. That passion extends to burgers, too. As Ghostburger evolves, you’ll see the ideas of our team shape the restaurant as we believe in empowering creativity.

In September of 2022, we decided to let Ghostburger take center stage. Ghostburger ceased to be a ghost kitchen and opened its first, very pink, standalone burger and sandwich joint in Shaw at 1250 9th Street NW. Now a year on we have spread our wings and landed in Expo City, Dubai
