Hedbanz

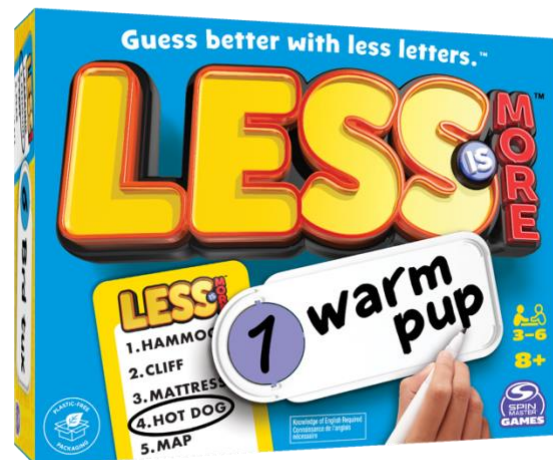

What am I? In this classic rapid-action family guessing game, players are given three scoring badges, and each draw a card to stick on their headbands without looking. On your turn, flip the timer and ask “yes” or “no” questions to find out what you are – an animal, food or object. Guess correctly and stick a scoring badge onto your headband, then pick a new card and continue asking questions. Guess incorrectly and lose your turn. The first player to earn three scoring badges wins. Through play, kids will develop deductive reasoning and problem-solving skills in a fun and thrilling way.

Less Is More

Less is more - is an old saying and it's true ... unless less becomes so little that no one has any idea what you are even trying to say. Try to get a player to guess a word using as few letters as possible. Whoever uses the least number of letters and gets the guesser to say the correct word, scores points. With more than a thousand words and a quick learning curve, Less is More can be played on repeat by all.
