

Women in World Christianity: Challenges and Opportunities

Come to explore the rapidly changing scene that is AI and think about how we can use it responsibly and ethically in God's service while avoiding the pitfalls.

Questions to be considered:

- How are MI members finding AI useful in their ministry now?
- What are the dangers? Ethical questions?
- What sort of boundaries do we need to put in place?
- What effect will it have on society? What are the experts saying?

Note: This will be an interactive workshop. The facilitator is not an AI or even IT expert but is a keen observer who sees the benefits of AI but is keenly aware of ethical concerns.

CHRISTINE PLATT

Christine is GRN Australia's CEO and gives both practical and spiritual leadership to the mission's members and work. Christine worked for a NSW electricity utility for eleven years as a cadet and then professional engineer. She became a Christian half-way through her degree and soon developed an interest in mission and ministry. Electrical engineering and missionary service have prepared Christine for the role of CEO. She is excited and thankful for this opportunity to Serve God, GRN, the church, and those who will hear the Good News through GRN's ministry in the future.
