

Risk Disclosure

Engaging in financial market transactions through Tradin entails exposure to a broad spectrum of risks, both trading related and operational. This disclosure is intended to provide you with an overview of key risk factors. It does not constitute an exhaustive list, nor does it imply that all risks will be incurred by every client. Clients are strongly encouraged to conduct independent due diligence and seek professional advice prior to initiating any trading activity.

The purpose of this statement is to ensure that you understand the nature of trading and investment in financial instruments and the risks associated with such activities. It forms an integral part of your contractual relationship with the Company. By opening an account with the Company, you acknowledge that you have read, understood, and accepted the following risks and that you are able to bear such risks without adversely affecting your financial position.

Risk of Loss & No Guarantee of Profits

Trading in financial instruments involves a high degree of risk and may not be suitable for all individuals. You may lose some or all of your invested capital. Past performance is not indicative of future results, and there is no guarantee of profits. You should carefully consider your objectives, level of experience, and risk appetite before engaging in trading activities.

Leverage Risk

Leverage enables clients to control positions significantly larger than their initial margin. While this can amplify returns, it equally magnifies potential losses. Even marginal price movements may result in disproportionate account volatility. The use of leverage should be approached with caution, and clients must fully understand its implications before engaging in leveraged transactions.

Volatility Risk

Financial instruments offered by Tradin may exhibit high intra-day volatility. Price fluctuations can be rapid and unpredictable, leading to slippage, widened spreads, and execution delays. Clients must acknowledge that such volatility can result in substantial gains or losses within short timeframes.

Technology & Operational Risk

Trading via electronic platforms is subject to technical vulnerabilities, including but not limited to:

- Software malfunctions or latency
- Internet connectivity disruptions
- Misconfigured trading terminals
- Hardware failures or outdated systems

Online trading involves risks associated with connectivity, software, and system failures that may result in delays or errors in order execution. While Tradin implements robust security and redundancy measures, we do not guarantee uninterrupted access to our platform and are not liable for any losses arising from such technical issues or external disruptions.

Market Conditions & Regulatory Compliance

Under abnormal market conditions including but not limited to illiquidity, geopolitical instability, or macroeconomic shocks order execution may be delayed, impaired, or unavailable. Clients are solely responsible for ensuring that their trading activities comply with the laws, tax obligations, and reporting requirements of their jurisdiction of residence.

Trading Execution Risk

Trading activities involve operational and market-structure risks that may impact your ability to trade or protect your positions. These include, without limitation:

- Technology and Systems Risks: Failures of hardware, software, internet connectivity, or trading platforms may disrupt access to your account, delay the execution of orders, or prevent you from monitoring positions in real time.
- Execution Risks: Orders may be delayed, rejected, or executed at prices different from those requested due to latency, insufficient liquidity, or prevailing market conditions. Slippage may occur, particularly in periods of high volatility.
- Cybersecurity Risks: While the Company implements robust security protocols, the risk of unauthorized access, hacking, or cyberattacks cannot be entirely eliminated. Such events may lead to loss, theft, or compromise of data or funds.
- Stop Loss and Order Limitations: Orders may be executed at prices materially less favorable than those requested, or may fail to be executed altogether, depending on prevailing market conditions.
- Market Closure and Price Gap Risks: Tradin hours of operation coincide with the global financial markets. Trading is available from Monday 00:00 to Friday 23:59 as per the trading platform time (GMT +3 During Summer and GMT +2 During Winter). A gap is a sharp price movement with no trades between price levels (commonly after weekend market closures or significant news releases, and occasionally on very short timeframes). Gaps can result in slippage, whereby stop, limit, and take-profit orders execute at the next available market price, which may be less favorable than the price requested. The Company does not guarantee execution at any specified price during such conditions and will execute orders on a best-efforts basis at the first available price from its liquidity providers. Gaps may increase losses, reduce expected profits, and cause equity to fall below margin requirements; clients are responsible for managing this risk.
- Knowledge and Platform Use: Inadequate understanding of the trading platform, order types, margin requirements, or the financial instruments themselves may result in unintended exposure or losses. Clients are responsible for familiarizing themselves with the functionality of the platform and the risks of the products traded.
