

WHY IS YOUR PET'S ROUTINE WELLNESS VISIT SO IMPORTANT?

Routine wellness visits are a great way to help your pet live a healthy life for as long as possible. These visits can also help us catch potential health issues earlier and may help you avoid additional costs associated with treatments if disease goes undetected.

A Physical Exam

We look for changes in your pet's teeth, weight, joints, skin, and ears. These changes may be signs of illness.

Diagnostic Screening Tests

We check your pet's internal health via diagnostic screening tests including blood, fecal, and urine tests. These results help us manage and track your pet's overall health.

A Review of Results

We look for changes in results from year to year. Changes can act as early warning signs of health problems.

WHAT WE LOOK AT DURING A VISIT AND WHY

Heart and Lungs

Infection or disease can make it difficult for your pet's heart and lungs to deliver enough oxygen-rich blood to the body.

Liver

Your pet's liver may have trouble managing proteins, fat, processing, and waste. These problems could be caused by disease, a blockage, or even medication.

Pancreas and Intestine

Problems with these digestive organs may be due to an inflamed pancreas and intestines, diabetes, or some types of cancers.

Kidneys

The kidneys are essential organs supporting major body systems. SDMA can be an early indicator for diseases affecting the kidneys as well as disease processes affecting the kidneys.*

Thyroid

If the thyroid glands aren't releasing the right amount of hormones, your pet's metabolism could be affected

Blood Cells

A complete blood count (CBC) tells us if your pet is fighting an infection or has some bleeding problems.

Urine

Urine tests tell us if your pet has evidence of dehydration, kidney disease, or diabetes.

Feces

Fecal antigen testing tells us if your pet has parasites. Other fecal tests may miss some of these common intestinal parasites, which can cause problems in people too.

Other

Physical changes in your pet's teeth, weight, joints, skin, and ears may be signs of illness.
