

End the culture of forwarding intimate images

Whether you call them sexts, nudes, naked selfies or just pics, if you receive an intimate image of someone else, remember there is no good excuse for forwarding or sharing it with other people.

Did you know? Canada's anti-cyberbullying law, Bill C-13, makes it illegal to share intimate images of someone else without their consent. Taking sexts is a risky behaviour in itself, but sharing a sext of someone else is illegal, morally wrong and can really hurt someone.
