Buggy ride into the untamed highlands

An unforgettable guided journey through the wild and untamed landscapes of Iceland's central highlands.

Season: June 15 to November 30 (subject to conditions)

Duration: 1-2 hours. Please contact sales@highlandbase.is for longer tours.

You bring

Warm clothes and socks, wind- and waterproof jacket, sturdy boots, gloves, buff, hat, and sunglasses. Water, snacks, and a light lunch.

Terms and conditions

Tours may be delayed or canceled due to weather and road conditions

We recommend wearing warm and comfortable clothing, a waterproof outer layer and good shoes, since conditions in the Icelandic highlands can change suddenly.

The bare basics

Meeting point

All tours start from Highland Base Kerlingarfjöll

Find your guide at the reception 15 minutes before departure. Let's head outside for an adventure!

What to bring

We recommend wearing warm and comfortable clothing, a waterproof outer layer and good shoes, since conditions in the Icelandic highlands can change suddenly. On a good summer day, you might be able to wear only a thin shirt and stuff the rest in a small backpack, but usually only for a short while. Bring a warm hat and gloves, buff or scarf, in summer and winter, and sunglasses and hiking poles if you've got them. We recommend opting for woolen garments, which don't lose their insulation qualities if wet.

Good and sturdy hiking boots or trail shoes and good hiking socks are a must. On most tours we will encounter the multicolored mud of Kerlingarfjöll that tends to stick to the bottom of shoes.

Lastly, fill your water bottle with the pure Icelandic tap water and slip it into your backpack along with some snacks. If the tour lasts more than 3 hours, you should also pack a light lunch.

Minimum age

We have a lot of experience hiking, skiing, and scrambling with children and teenagers, and we know that they are usually far more capable and fit than their parents give them credit for. However, because of the technicality and skill level required on some of our tours, we have set age limits that reflect the difficulty involved.

We are, however, more than happy to consider this age limit for children who are fit and accustomed to outdoor adventures.

General terms and conditions

Tours and activities are operated either by Highland Base or a third party provider.

Guests assume all risks associated with activities organized by Highland Base as well as activities involving third party providers. Please note that activities organized involving third party providers are subject to the relevant providers' terms and conditions.

Highland Base cannot be held responsible for delays, cancellations, or accidents arising from tours or transfers booked through and/or organized by a third party.

The reseller is responsible for informing their relevant staff members (tour guides, etc.) and guests about the relevant terms and conditions relating to Safety Standards and Liability.
