THE STORY

This temporary recruitment business supplies engineering contractors to clients including TfL, specialising in electrical installation. When sites closed due to COVID-19, the business was forced to pause work and furlough staff. Now that these sites have reopened, they've seen a surge in demand which means having to hire more staff to support temporary growth.

The business pays its contractors before getting paid by their clients, so a funding solution that unlocks cash from those outstanding invoices makes perfect sense. It's a flexible facility that lets the business choose which invoices to fund as and when they need to.
