SITUATIONAL QUESTION - STAR METHOD

Tell me about a time when you performed well under pressure at work

S- At my last job, my coworker had an emergency and needed to miss work for some time, their important project was left unfinished and without a manager.

T- My supervisor instructed me to take on the project, and with no leniency on the deadline, I had days to complete a project that originally should have taken several weeks.

A- I requested and was granted a reduction in my weekly goals, allotting me more time to attack the special project. As far as my weekly goals, I was able to delegate them out evenly to some of my teammates.

R- With the reduction in my daily goals, I was able to dedicate more time to the project. This allowed me to finish it on time and with complete accuracy. My supervisor appreciated my hard work and dedication, and was able to raise my salary. I was able to complete the project on time and with complete accuracy. My supervisor appreciated my hard work and dedication, and was able to raise my salary. I was able to complete the project on time and with complete accuracy. My supervisor appreciated my hard work and dedication, and was able to raise my salary.

AUTHENTIC

- Be genuine
- Believe in yourself, you are NOT an imposter!
- Hit on the selling points.

PRACTICE

- Mock interviews (friends, hiring managers etc)
- Prepare for unexpected questions and how you will answer them.
