What is GMO?

GMO stands for Genetically Modified Organism. Genetic modification involves changing the DNA of an organism. In the case of vegetable crops, this is done to make them more resistant to certain diseases. Genetic modification is subject to strict requirements and is laid down in European legislation to guarantee safe use.

- GMO-free / NON-GMO raw materials / GMO-Controlled
Despite the fact that genetically modified crops have been cultivated and used in animal feed for many years, for many people it remains a situation that they would rather not choose. Many pet owners and animal lovers are close to nature and want to treat it with respect. Not interfering too much with biodiversity and giving the animals as much opportunity as possible to express their natural behaviour, and feeding them with purely natural ingredients. Feedingstuffs without genetically modified raw materials fits in perfectly with this philosophy. Claiming that a product is 100% GMO-free is, in practice, not always feasible because in the process of raw material collection, intermediate storage, transport, processing, etc. the possibility of cross-contamination can always arise. This is the residue, however small, of, for example, GMO-containing corn. Legislation has provided for this and that is why we speak of NON-GMO raw materials. This term applies to batches of raw materials that are at least 99.1% pure of non-GMO product.
- GMO-free Formulated
Stringent requirements for the purchase of raw materials, careful production and close monitoring of the feeds ensure that the feeds are indeed always as GMO-free as possible. This working method is laid down in an additional GMP+ quality system and is called GMO-Formulated.
These feeds are therefore formulated, as it were, GMO-free.

For each animal, 4 life stages

It couldn't be simpler

HobbyFirst distinguishes between 4 stages of life, each with its own number and colour. We start with number 1 for the youngest animals and go up to number 4 for the grooming phase. The number for the life phase is clearly indicated on the front of the packaging. Not all animal groups have 4 life stages, some even have none at all. Just think of rodents. They can start eating from birth, as soon as they have teeth, until they are very old.

Unique packaging for each stage of life - that's easy!
