

Guide to the language used in the Personal Independence Payment (PIP) assessment criteria

Whether you can get Personal Independence Payment (PIP) depends on an assessment of your ability to carry out certain daily living activities and mobility activities. This is measured against a list of descriptors, which describe varying levels of ability under each activity. The activities and the descriptors are known as the assessment criteria and are set out in regulations.

The regulations also provide definitions for the words used in the assessment criteria. When you're assessed, the assessor must use the meaning of words as they are defined in the regulations. These meanings are set out in the following table.
