

You will need:

- a World values auction team sheet for each team
- a profile card for each team
- 207 'banknotes' for the auction – (see page 3)
- a copy of the World values auction powerpoint, ready to show
- one image of each item in the auction, to give to the team that wins each bid (see page 4)
- You could also have an auctioneer's gavel, for authenticity!

Outline of the activity:

- Break the participants into teams of four or five.
- Give each team a double-sided team sheet and a character profile card with information about someone from around the world.
- Give each team 'money' with which the team members will bid at the auction, representing the person on their card. Explain that global resources and wealth are unequally shared. This can be seen by comparing the GDP (Gross domestic product - a measure of national income) per person in 2006: UK £32,654; Honduras £3,553; Cambodia £1,619; Kenya £1,436; Nigeria £1,852 (Source: Human Development Index 2008, UNDP). Based on these figures, 207 'notes' of paper money should be distributed to teams as follows:
 - Jonathan, UK = 164 notes
 - Martin, Honduras = 18 notes
 - Phanna, Cambodia = 8 notes
 - Kepha, Kenya = 7 notes
 - Margaret, Nigeria = 10 notes
- Give the teams a few minutes to discuss what would be important to the person for whom they are bidding, and to nominate a team bidder.
- Call the teams together and start the auction (using the powerpoint) taking bids for each item. As each item is sold, collect the money and give an image of the lot to the team with the highest bid.
- Debrief – this is the most important part of the activity and should not be rushed. Ask questions like:
 - Read aloud your person's profile.
 - What did you think would be important for this person?
 - What did you want to bid for?
 - What did you end up buying?
 - If you couldn't buy what you wanted, why not?
 - If you were bidding for yourself would you have bid for the same or different things?
 - What is important to you? And why?
 - Did you bid for needs or wants?
