

Let's make this a

SUMMER OF
hope

Transform lockdown and cancelled events this summer into a sign of hope by raising money to help CAFOD's Coronavirus response reach some of the world's poorest families.

How to run a Summer of Hope watery fundraiser in seven easy steps

Decide what watery challenges you will do.

Such as:

- Throwing wet sponges at a volunteer
- Walking with water a set distance
- Races to transfer the most water without spilling it using an unusual container... an egg cup?
- Drinking only water for a week, two weeks...
- Other _____

Decide the details – like when to do the challenge or event and what you will need.

- Set a date and time. Weekend may be best for an event if someone in your family works during the week.
- Gather any props you will need, like buckets, sponges, and towels.
- Work out your route or how much space you will need and who else needs to be involved.
- Work out how you will raise money – such as charging by distance if you are walking, or by race, or by sponge that reaches its target! You could invite other families to hold their event at the same time and run a league table. If your challenge is to drink only water, ask sponsorship for each day you go without any other drinks.

Ask for help – rope in family members to do different jobs, like setting up your JustGiving page (see below), making a scoreboard or finish lines, or preparing refreshments. Everyone can help with promotion!

Set up your JustGiving page – or, if you are under 18, ask someone in your family to do this. Start from our Summer of Hope page and you'll get everything you need.

Promote your event! Share with friends and family what you are planning and why, especially your JustGiving page. And remember people who aren't online – tell your grandparents about it! You could live stream bits of your event – remember to get permission from everyone involved. Or post pictures on social media. Tag your photos @cafod #summerofhope. Share on facebook.com/CAFOD or @CAFODevents
