

I was elected to the committee of Blackpool North and Cleveleys Conservative Association in March 2022, every committee meeting I attended was held in Paul Maynard's constituency office at BTMC Faraday Way. with the exception of the committee meeting on 18 July 2022 which was held in the boardroom at BTMC, Faraday Way.

I brought my concerns of holding meetings in the constituency office to the committee meeting held on 18 July 2022. Simon Renwick also told me the office can be used out of office hours as IPSA rules don't apply. Paul Maynard MP pointed out that we were actually in the boardroom.

When I asked Simon Renwick if there was a licence/agreement, he replied 'No' because he paid £150 to IPSA for use of the office at election time and for occasional use and a licence/agreement wasn't necessary.

Paul Maynard MP, told me he doesn't want rent for an association office to come out of the money he donates/raises to the Association when his office 'funded by the association, via IPSA' can be used.

I suggested having an association office at Red Bank Road, the address that has been used on political literature and on the imprint on Paul Maynard's website (this was recently updated to Rm 11a). Paul Maynard said '...that would take us back 20 years...' and '...there are reasons why we're not there...' Yet, 70 Red Bank Road is the address used on political leaflets, MP's website and Facebook despite the MP and Simon Renwick saying they never go there. In view of this fact, that they never go there, then why did Simon Renwick, Paul Maynard and Richard Rendell use 70 Red Bank Road address on the imprint rather than the MP's office where meetings are held, and the printing, stuffing and collecting by party members actually takes place. This can only be viewed as covering the fact that the MP's office was used for political purposes and an imprint with a different address would distract from where they were actually based. Richard Rendell's name is on the imprint on leaflets which state 'Promoted and printed by Richard Rendell on behalf of [name of candidate] all at 70 Red Bank Road...'

I have witnessed printing of political literature on parliamentary equipment by Simon Renwick, Chief of Staff to Paul Maynard MP. Simon told me that the Riso belonged to the Association. I have also seen political surveys on Simon's desk ready to be inputted onto VoteSource the Conservative database. I have met party members in the office to collect political literature to deliver for the MP.

Part A, Fundamental Principles Point 2 is Value for Money: MPs must have regard to value for money when making claims

I believe that Paul Maynard MP, and Simon Renwick and Richard Rendell have not met Point 2 above as the use of the MP's office for mailing address, meetings, printing, collating correspondence into envelopes in order to distribute political literature, using the office as a collection point for said mail is not allowed under IPSA Rules without a licence/agreement.

Also, leasing the printer, Riso and commercial guillotine for printing of political literature comes at a great cost to the taxpayer. A majority of MP's have table top printer/photocopiers as there are only constituent letters to print. Business cards and other parliamentary stationery are usually printed by a commercial printer and charged to IPSA.

Simon Renwick saves PDFs of political literature to print on his parliamentary laptop, they should be there unless he has deleted them.

Year	Lease and maintenance costs for Riso, printer, guillotine inc toner
2023-2024 payments to Sept 2023 only	£2,643.84
2022-2023	£4,745.12
2021-2022	£7,146.96
2020-2021	£5,716.32
2019-2020	£8,072.24

2013-2014	£4,412.64
2012-2013	£3,374.43
2011-2012	£3,195.48
2010-2011	£594.61
Total	£68,373.15

Without requesting further Fols which will take at least 20 working days to arrive, I do not have copies of invoices regarding all the above lease and maintenance costs for the Riso, printer, guillotines and toner. These figures have been extracted from <https://www.theipsa.org.uk/mp-staffing-business-costs/your-mp/paul-maynard/3926>

There are also extra costs to be added as the printer has a copy counter and there are an extra two charges for mono and colour copies.

I do not have copies of the lease agreements for the Riso, printer or guillotine

A table top guillotine, sufficient for a MP's office was purchased in February 2013 but at a later date, probably 2017, a commercial standalone guillotine is shown on the same Seimens lease invoice with the Riso. The guillotine is leased at £160 per quarter year (£640pa)

The former parliamentary office on Queen Street, Blackpool was also used by the Association and the imprint was 70 Red Bank Road to disassociate the political association from the MP's office. This trend to use Red Bank Road was carried on; the imprint for political literature used continuously to disassociate the Association from the MP's new address

A Risograph is the alternative, well-known name for the RISO Duplicator, a high-speed digital printing system manufactured in Japan for high-volume, high speed printing. When printing many copies of the same document (generally more than 20), it is far cheaper to print on these printers than a conventional printer or photocopier.

The Risograph is a mix between your standard office copier and a small offset printing press, giving you the best of both worlds; a combination of functionality but more importantly you can do large print runs at minimum cost to your organisation. As well as RISO duplicators, Midshire also provides a full range of RISO UK consumables, including all inks, drums, masters, spares and accessories.

These devices are used for printing a large variety of printed materials including: posters, business cards, invitations, certificates, envelopes, catalogues, art prints and letterheads. A wide range of paper medias and weights can be printed on, from 46gsm up-to 400gsm.

Risographs bridge the gap between in-house printing and lithographic printing. The ideal positioning for a this printer is print runs between 20 and up to 2,000 prints, after which it becomes more cost effective to use lithography and offset printing.
