the 1990s, the number of people in the UK with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 2000). The prevalence of mental health problems in the UK is estimated to be 12.5% (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems in the workplace. The UK Government has introduced legislation to protect the rights of people with mental health problems in the workplace (Mental Health Act 1983, Mental Health Act 2003). The Mental Health Act 2003 introduced a new duty on employers to make reasonable adjustments for people with mental health problems in the workplace. This duty is now enshrined in the Equality Act 2010. The Equality Act 2010 requires employers to make reasonable adjustments for people with mental health problems in the workplace. This duty is now enshrined in the Equality Act 2010.
