Social Distancing - A Short Story

Things haven't been the same lately.
I haven't been to school in a while.
My parents are teaching me at home.
They have also been spending a lot more time here.
Which is good. I like that part.
But I miss seeing the rest of the family.
I miss them so much that I almost hug my brother.
Even when we see them, we have to stay a few feet apart.
It's called "social distancing", mom said.
It's to protect them and ourselves.
I can't wait to hug grandma and grandpa really really tight.
But until then, I found the perfect solution: I've been saving my hugs.
I keep track in my journal of all the hugs I wanted to give them, one by one.
So far I've tracked 37.
When we're finally able to hug each other again, I'll give them a big big hug.
As long as all the hugs that I have saved.
Just thinking about it makes my heart warm.
Because then we won't have to stay apart anymore.
