Model description

The year 1976 signaled major changes for Cadillac. The Eldorado convertible was in its last year, along with the entry level Calais, and the division shifted its focus to the new Seville, which was aimed at luxury European imports from the likes of BMW and Mercedes Benz.

The drop-top 1976 Eldorado was touted as "the last convertible," and 14,000 jumped at the chance. Buyers of the "Final 200," which were all white-on-white with red piped interiors, paid a significant premium. Many 1976 Eldorado convertibles were put away as future collectibles, and even though the car certainly wasn't "the last convertible" by any means, many '76 Eldorados are still remarkably well-preserved today.

Despite the high-energy ignition and even with optional fuel injection instead of a 4-barrel carburetor, the 500 cid V-8 was still quoted at a dismal 190 net horsepower, and this would be its last year the Eldorado's Turbo Hydra-Matic transmission featured a side-by-side setup and a unique internal chain drive. Front suspension was by torsion bar with rear coil springs and an available self-leveling system. External changes to the Eldorado were minor, with a taller grille and black centers to the hubcaps. Four-wheel disc brakes were standard, and new taillights were horizontal slots each side of the license plate.

The Custom Cabriolet package continued for the Eldorado Coupe, with a "halo" half vinyl roof that featured a chrome bar across the top. Behind it was padded vinyl and ahead of it was a sunroof, set in the painted roof.

Vehicle's condition classification

#1. Concours

#1 vehicles are the best in the world. Imagine the best vehicle, in the right colors, driving onto the lawn at the finest concours. Perfectly clean, the vehicle has been groomed down to the tire treads. Painted and chromed surfaces are mirror-like. Dust and dirt are banned, and materials used are correct and superbly fitted.

#3. Good

#3 vehicles drive and run well but are not used for daily transportation. The casual passerby will not find any visual flaws, but these vehicles might have some incorrect parts. #3 vehicles could possess some, but not all, of the issues of a #4 vehicle, but they will be balanced by other factors such as fresh paint or a new, correct interior.

#2. Excellent

#2 vehicles could win a local or regional show. They might even be former #1 vehicles that have been driven or have aged. Seasoned observers will have to look closely for flaws but will be able to find some. The paint, chrome, glass and finishes will all appear as excellent. The vehicle drives as a new vehicle of its era would.

#4. Fair

#4 vehicles are daily drivers, with flaws visible to the naked eye. The chrome might have pitting, the windshield might be chipped and perhaps the body has a minor dent. Imperfect paintwork, split seams or a cracked dash might be present. No major parts are missing, but there might be non-stock additions. A #4 vehicle can also be a deteriorated restoration.
