The Cetacean Research & Rescue Unit (CRRU) is a recognized Scottish charity dedicated to the understanding, welfare, conservation and protection of cetaceans (whales, dolphins and porpoises) in Scotland through scientific investigation, environmental education, and the provision of professional veterinary assistance to sick, stranded and injured individuals.

Founding members of the UK Marine Animal Rescue Coalition and providing specialist training in marine mammal rescue techniques for professional bodies, volunteers and members of the public alike, the CRRU operates the only 24-hour emergency rescue team for whales and dolphins in Scotland.

Thank you for your support!
