Perspectives on Professional Education and Learning Technology

HW HarrisWilliams

Professional Education and Learning Technology Observations and Key Trends

The professional education and learning technology landscape is constantly evolving, primarily driven by the widening skill gap, ongoing shift to digital and blended learning, and a favorable job market, especially in both professional and trade professions

Happening in Education Tech Right Now

Rapid Acceleration of Digital and Remote Learning

Ongoing shift to online and blended learning is accelerating

Changing workforce demographics as younger, technology-proficient workers demand more accessible training (i.e., mobile, on-demand, etc.)

eLearning is enabling organizations to reach more professions and reskill their workforces more efficiently

Continuous development in new and more complex technology is forcing organizations to invest more in workforce development initiatives

Heightened competition for talent is making training and upskilling a strategic imperative

Rising Demand for Professional Certifications for Career Advancement

Traditional linear career paths have been replaced by lateral moves and career pivots

Professional education and certifications are providing opportunities for professionals to explore their interests and advance their careers

Attaining micro-credentials allows professionals to build an attractive skill portfolio, signal their competencies, and become more marketable to potential employers

Greater Emphasis on Educational Outcomes Driving Innovation in Learning Technology

Investment in learning technology is becoming a strategic imperative for organizations seeking to manage remote workforces, close the skills gap, and keep up with the pace of innovation

New software and infrastructure are constantly being developed and funded to create more effective learning experiences at scale

Increasingly Complex Regulatory Environment Driving Investment in Compliance and Safety Training

Increasing number of jobs require compliance with state and federal regulations

Availability of quality, up-to-date content continues to be a key pain point for highly regulated markets

Many organizations are implementing company-mandated compliance training programs to reduce risk and create safer workplaces

What We're Reading

5 Training Lessons Companies Have Learned from the Pandemic

Entrepreneur

"Things are certainly different now. The pandemic has not only accelerated digital applications and remote work, but also the need for effective remote training strategies. These range from meeting the needs of homebound and geographically dispersed workforces, to training new hires who've never been on site, to onboarding, up-skilling and re-skilling."

How to Build a Culture of Learning

Forbes

"A recent report by Harvard Business Publishing found that 54% of the workforce will need up-skilling or re-skilling by 2025. In the same report, 85% of employees said they know where they have skills gaps, but only 41% believed their managers understood their gaps. According to a Gartner survey, only 20% of workers are confident they have the necessary skills for the future."

4 Ways to Bridge the Global Skills Gap

Harvard Business Review

"Yuwaah (Generation Unlimited India) and PwC are developing a 'platform of platforms' that will aggregate existing platforms providing digital up-skilling opportunities to help connect youth with options for training, career guidance and, ultimately, jobs. The partnership aims to transform education, skilling, and employment for 300 million young people in India by 2030."

6 Ways to Tackle the Massive Software Engineering Skills Shortage

Deloitte

"Writing code to create cloud-based digital portals and business applications isn't just for software companies anymore. Increasingly, techforward businesses are building their own stable of software engineers and cloud architects to generate custom digital software and products, rather than relying on third-party vendors. That's a huge shift for most businesses."
