PLEASANTON, Calif., Sept. 15, 2021 /PRNewswire/ -- CloroxPro, the professional products division of The Clorox Company, announced today a multi-million-dollar donation of its disinfecting products to Convoy of Hope to help with Hurricane Ida recovery efforts as well as ongoing disaster relief as the severe 2021 Atlantic hurricane season continues to unfold. CloroxPro's donation, along with shipping and distribution services from Convoy of Hope, will help recipients address cleaning, disinfection and mold remediation efforts that are critical in the aftermath of hurricanes and other natural disasters.

Clorox® TurboPro™ Handheld Electrostatic Sprayer

The donation includes 7,000 Clorox® TurboPro™ Handheld Electrostatic Sprayers which are specially engineered to disinfect large spaces quickly and easily. In addition, hundreds of truckloads of CloroxPro disinfectants are being deployed across multiple impacted states, including ready-to-use bleach products that clean, kill and control mold and mildew. Convoy of Hope trucks have already started picking up and delivering the products to areas that have been impacted by Ida and others anticipating destruction from impending storms.

"We feel for the communities devastated by hurricanes like Ida and are honored to help get our disinfecting products to the people who need them most right now, whether for their homes, small businesses, schools, or healthcare facilities," said Chris Tucker, Vice President and General Manager for CloroxPro. "Convoy of Hope is providing a truly valuable service in getting these products to impacted communities as quickly and efficiently as possible."
