Example text

"The other day my daughter was teaching her grandfather how to use a web browser. She had spent the previous week explaining how to use his new desktop computer. He's a carpenter and a very good one, but he never had much use for a computer until now. He was a bit of a traditionalist and liked reading paper newspapers, paying bills by cheque and looking for information in his encyclopedias or going to the library. But, we persuaded him to buy a computer and he never does anything by halves, so he bought a top-of-the-line computer for himself. Anyway, she explained to him that once you have plugged the machine in; booted the computer and logged on all he had to do was double click on the Microsoft Edge or Google Chrome and the applications would launch. All he had to do was type in a word or phrase he was searching for and click the search icon that looked like a magnifying glass. She explained how to search for things using the URL, but he was really interested in the streaming services such as Netflix and HBO."
