Discovery insights from... Dr. Rosemari Jung

1. Please briefly describe who you are and your role?

I am Rosemari Jung, a doctor working at UniMed Porto Alegre in Brazil as a Medical Advisor for New Technologies. I have medical residency in General Surgery and specializations in Gastroenterology and Digestive Endoscopy; I also completed a Masters in Technology Management. My current position involves carrying out Technical Opinions that support the acquisition of new medical technologies.

ClinicalKey offers a very user-friendly search engine that provides answers to clinical questions in a variety of ways

2. What problems were you attempting to solve when you started using ClinicalKey?

I started using ClinicalKey as a search tool in my work, complementing other searches in databases. I also use it as a source of illustrations for occasional presentations.

3. From your point of view, what are the biggest benefits you found in using ClinicalKey in your day to day routine?

ClinicalKey offers a very user-friendly search engine that provides answers to clinical questions in a variety of ways. I particularly like the Overviews when I'm starting a study and I need to update myself or have a general context of the situation. I also look for recent book chapters with a general, up-to-date explanation of a specific topic.

4. What's the primary reason you would recommend ClinicalKey?

I recommend ClinicalKey as both a clinical decision support tool and a source of information for use in presentations/classes.
