Frequently Asked Questions

Who should use this form?

Use this form if you are a retired member:

- who has returned, or who is considering a return, to work at a HOOPP employer and
- would like an estimate of the impact of temporarily stopping your pension and resuming contributions to the Plan.

This form should not be used by active or deferred members to request a retirement estimate.

Do I have to re-enrol in the Plan if I return to work at a HOOPP employer?

No, if you decide to return to work after retirement with an employer that offers HOOPP, you have two choices:

- you can continue to receive your HOOPP pension while working, or
- you can suspend your pension, re-enrol in HOOPP and start contributing again

Can I re-enrol in the Plan and continue to collect my pension?

No, you cannot receive your pension while contributing to the Plan.

If I re-enrol in the Plan, can I change the form of pension benefit I selected at retirement when I resume my pension?

No, the form of pension you selected at retirement cannot be changed. If you originally retired with a qualifying spouse, that person will continue to be entitled to the same survivor benefit you selected at retirement. If you did not have a qualifying spouse at retirement, you cannot add a new spouse as part of your re-enrolment. However, whether you re-enrol or not, you may be able to apply to add a new spouse post-retirement. Please contact HOOPP for more information.

Why do I have to choose the last day of the month to stop my pension payments?

You cannot collect your pension and contribute to the Plan at the same time. Since HOOPP pensions are paid at the beginning of the month, you can only resume contributing after the last day of the month that you receive your last payment.

Why is the date I resume my pension payments the first day of the month?

HOOPP pension payments are payable on the first of the month.

What are full-time equivalent (FTE) hours?

The FTE for a position with an employer refers to the number of regular hours that a full-time employee in that position would work in a calendar year. The FTE for your position is determined by your employer.
